Robin Collins has been involved with the construction industry and code compliance for over 24 years; starting out as a Code Enforcement Officer in her early teens. She went to college in Arizona where she studied Building Construction Technology and Business Management. Robin further developed her career by becoming a Certified Combination Building Inspector for a small city in Arizona, and later moved on to become a Senior Commercial Plans Examiner for Clark County and the City of North Las Vegas in Las Vegas, Nevada. She has refined many plans review processes throughout her employment with many jurisdictions, has taught several classes on construction, building codes and code enforcement, and served as the project manager for the design and implementation of three (3) permitting software programs. During her employment with local jurisdictions in Nevada, she performed plan review on several multi-million dollar hotels and casinos, retail stores, industrial projects, multi-family and residential construction.

Robin and her family moved to Idaho in 2002, where she continued her commitment to public service in the building and code compliance field. She began working for the City of Nampa as a Plans Examiner and has held positions as a Plans Examiner, Plans Examination Supervisor, Assistant Building Official, and currently is the Division Supervisor for the Code Enforcement Division within the Economic Development Department. As Nampa's Code Enforcement Supervisor, Robin oversees the Code Enforcement Officers, two of which are funded through Community Development Block Grants, as well as Parking Enforcement.
